Methods of Analysis

Investment strategy:

Our investment strategy includes classic equity strategy leveraging years of hand-scrubbed US data by size, sector/industry, risk, and style. We identify under and overvalued sectors and make active calls on select industries within those sectors.

Quantitative Modeling:

Cirrus Signature models, using proprietary factors, regularly produce portfolios that generate alpha signals; 24 Long and 4 Short models covering Large to Micro, Growth and Value that are individually tested.

Research Reports:

Designed to put our best ideas to work, our reports provide detailed macro observations regarding markets and trends with the potential to impact your performance.

Reports range from active strategy work on sector/industry developments or factor behavior that discusses the near and long-term implications to concise investigations of a market trend, zeroing in on drivers, impact, correlations and leaders/laggards. The macro picture is always illustrated at the stock level.

Proprietary Indicators:

Market intelligence tools to gauge risk and shifts in behavior; Examples include Cirrus Risk Indicator (CRX), a contra-indicator on risk appetite for identifying market-timing opportunities.

Custom Portfolio Spreadsheets:

Stock ranks available at your fingertips; identify compelling or deteriorating characteristics based on examination of key factors including Quality, Price Momentum, Business Momentum, and Value. Short model identifies stocks with favorable short characteristics.

Performance Analytics:

Monthly performance exhibits by size, sector, industry, factors, models as well as a written distillation of the month's developments and trends.

Global Perspective:

We provide consistent comparisons across the global equity landscape for Small & Mid Cap companies with detailed and cleaned historical data for 10 key markets segmented by size and characteristics allowing clients to identify opportunities.

Investment Strategies

CIRRUS offers research consulting services. Both the client and eventually CIRRUS's challenges are many and they tend to target issues such as market/risk posture, style, size, sector focus and stock picking. Portfolio manager clientele, running similar funds such as large cap growth, can have radically different strategies employed. As a result, their questions and needs can vary vastly. Importantly, CIRRUS covers investment managers that are responsible for varied strategies which include micro-cap to small to mid-cap and large capitalization firms. They can vary from running growth funds while others are responsible for value funds. A number of our managers run their funds fundamentally by picking stock by stock, while others run it from a macro level basing decisions on economic sensitivities and market factors.

The client could be focused on large, mid, small or micro sized companies; they can be growth-based or value driven or they can approach the fund from a bottoms-up or top-down focus. They can be global or domestic. These are some examples of the specialized nature of the Cirrus agenda for each client.

Risk of Loss

All investment programs have certain risks that are borne by the investor. Our investment approach constantly keeps the risk of loss in mind. Investors face the following investment risks:

- Interest-rate Risk: Fluctuations in interest rates may cause investment prices to fluctuate. For example, when interest rates rise, yields on existing bonds become less attractive, causing their market values to decline.
- Market Risk: The price of a security, bond, or mutual fund may drop in reaction to tangible and intangible events and conditions. This type of risk is caused by external factors independent of a security's particular underlying circumstances. For example, political, economic and social conditions may trigger market events.
- Inflation Risk: When any type of inflation is present, a dollar today will not buy as much as a dollar next year, because purchasing power is eroding at the rate of inflation.
- Currency Risk: Overseas investments are subject to fluctuations in the value of the dollar against the currency of the investment's originating country. This is also referred to as exchange rate risk.
- Reinvestment Risk: This is the risk that future proceeds from investments may have to be reinvested at a potentially lower rate of return (i.e., interest rate). This primarily relates to fixed income securities.

- Business Risk: These risks are associated with a particular industry or a particular company within an industry. For example, oil-drilling companies depend on finding oil and then refining it, a lengthy process, before they can generate a profit. They carry a higher risk of profitability than an electric company, which generates its income from a steady stream of customers who buy electricity no matter what the economic environment is like.
- Liquidity Risk: Liquidity is the ability to readily convert an investment into cash. Generally, assets are more liquid if many traders are interested in a standardized product. For example, Treasury Bills are highly liquid, while real estate properties are not.
- Financial Risk: Excessive borrowing to finance a business' operations increases the risk of profitability, because the company must meet the terms of its obligations in good times and bad. During periods of financial stress, the inability to meet loan obligations may result in bankruptcy and/or a declining market value.
